

School Leadership and Evidence Based Practice: A Hong Kong Case Study

Terry QUONG

A case study that describes what evidence based practice means in one Hong Kong secondary college. Much has been written about evidence based practice in schools, but few articles actually describe what it is in actual practice. This case study serves as a model for practicing school leaders and an illustration of a principle for educational researchers.

