1. Course Synopsis

In this course, students will read a range of poetry spanning the decades of the twentieth century and attempt to understand what poetry is and how it differs from other literary forms, what special skills are needed to understand it and what purpose it serves in society. Students will learn to analyse poetry both formally and thematically. Poetry dealing with a wide range of themes will be introduced, such as love, death, war, race, gender, etc. Poetry emerging from historical events such as the two World Wars and social and cultural movements, such as the Harlem Renaissance in America, will be studied, thus allowing us to examine the crucial link between literary production and socio-historical processes.
